

MIND WEB

A mind web is a tool, a graphic organizer, used to brainstorm ideas around a central idea. The central idea goes, you guessed it, in the center. A clear way to do this is to write the word on a piece of paper or on the board and put a circle or square around the word. Then, all the ideas that come from that word—connections, descriptions, quantifiers and qualifiers—are written around the word and connected to it by lines. Picture a bicycle tire with the central hub and the spokes coming in to the hub from all around the external diameter.